Science Week

Katherine Megan-McArthur, a NASA astronaut who completed her last space mission just months ago, and Lawrence Krauss, a renowned theoretical physicist, will be in Sydney for National Science Week, which starts on Saturday. The Emmy award-winning space artist Jon

Lomberg, best known for his creation of the dramatic opening sequence in the 1997 Jodie Foster film Contact (pictured, one of his works), will also speak at the Ultimo Science Festival. Dr Allan Jones, of the University of Sydney, will give a free illustrated talk on microscopy at the Macleay Museum on Sunday.
